

Owner Nick Mifsud stands next to his latest restoration project — a 1971 Plymouth Scant. He was chosen by Fran Auto to restore the classic car.

Wreck N Restoration puts customers' needs first

By ANDREA GRIMALDI
Special to The Oakland Press

Wreck N Restoration's owner Nick Mifsud believes that word-of-mouth is the best way for a business to grow, and he is determined to make every word about his shop a positive one.

From rebuilding and repairing after accidents to repainting and restoring classic cars, Wreck N Restorations puts the customer's vision first every step along the way.

The Rochester Hills body shop went independent last year and already has a reputation for great work and customer service.

Dealing with the aftermath of car accidents can be difficult and confusing.

Nick is dedicated to helping customers know what to expect from the insurance companies, how to make claims and how to get the information needed.

Unlike most repair shops, he works hard to make sure customers are not overpaying or getting the short end of a deal.

He will lay out the best route for any situation. When it comes to making repairs, Nick keeps the guesswork out of his garage by making sure customers understand exactly what work is needed every step of the way.

Michigan is full of classic cars, but not all of them are exactly showroom ready.

Nick has been in the restoration business for more than 10 years and specializes in making cars go from dust-collectors to Woodward cruisers.

The customer's dream of their restoration is the final product of each project. As the shop's tagline explains, "If you can dream it, I can build it!" Mifsud documents every step on every restoration he does so customers can see all the work that went into it.

Customers often receive more than 100 pictures with the final product detailing what was done to the car. Having work done at Wrecks N Restoration is as enlightening as it is exciting.

Some of the cars Wrecks N Restorations worked on have even gone on to be showcased in car shows, magazines, Autorama and cruises around the country.

Wreck N Restorations paints anything from cars to motorcycle helmets. Mifsud and his team are ready to tackle any project from scratch repair to complete color changes.

Chameleon color changing paint, matte and even glow in the dark paint are all available. No paint job is too small. They have painted refrigerators to match man-cave garage décor.

Other unique projects have included mailboxes, golf carts, remote controlled cars, mannequins and antique pedal cars.

Mifsud's persistence, dedication and hard work also lands Wrecks N Restorations jobs working with national parts companies to build demo cars.

He was chosen by Fran Auto to repaint and remodel a 1971 Plymouth Scant because of his ability to help develop ideas.

Together they are building a classic car with a modern motor that can appeal to any car fan. This vehicle will be used in outreach programs in schools and different car shows. Watch the Scant's progress on Scrapyard Scant's Facebook.

Wreck N Restorations want to hear about any upcoming project you may have. They offer free detailing and a referral program for new and returning customers. They promise competitive prices and unbeatable quality work.

Find them on Facebook to read testimonials, or visit their website at www.wrecksnrestoration.com to see pictures of past projects and to read more about the company.

Call with any additional questions at 248-852-5755. They are open Monday through Friday from 8:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m., Saturday by appointment.